Running in the Rain

by Dr. Gregory Wiens

This morning, when I went out to run, it was dark, overcast and cold (it was at least for Orlando...the temperature was about 50°). As I started my run it began to pour down rain. Most people would think running in the cold rain would not be too exciting. However, the opposite happened appropriately: I wore a skin-tight (Under Armor) shirt to reduce chafing and retain heat and a big brimmed baseball hat that kept my eyes...it was great! As I ran, I thought; if you are prepared, the weather won't determine the quality of the run. Sure, I had to back off a bit...I wasn't as fast as it would have otherwise been; but I so enjoyed the moment.
